There was practically no fish taken out Wednesday, the sloop Sea Foam arriving with about 70 barrels of herring early in the afternoon.

The Gloucester fisherman Claudia came in Wednesday for bait and ice and will start today for the fishing grounds.

June 19. 55 LUNENBURG HIGH LINE 1400 QTLS.

Says the Halifax Chronicle of June 10, concerning the spring catch of the Lunenburg fleet:

The spring fishing trip has been such continuous procession of torn sails, loss of cables, injuries to men, rigging, the running gear, that it would be quite easy to name those vessels which have returned from the Banks in a seaworthy condition. The ice on the Cape Breton coast prevented the fleet from proceeding to the Magdalens for bait, and many laid at Canso or other ports ranging over a month without being able to go out to the fishing grounds.

The schooner James Burton Cook, Captain Abraham Cook, was one of the few to secure a baiting at the Magdalens, and caught 450 quintals from that one baiting. This vessel is an up-to-date high line with 1400 quintals of fish. Captain Cook has been high line so frequently that it is an old story and a familiar one with his owners.

The schooner Leda J. Schwartz, arrived recently in charge of a tow-boat, having her rudder head twisted. Captain Schwartz will have the repairs made on the ship and return to the Banks.

Fish, no doubt on account of the scarcity, are probably the highest on record. The prices quoted today are $7.50 per quintal. The following are the halings, as near as possible to date:

NEARLY MILLION POUNDS TO SPLIT

Procession of Crafts From Boston Pier Down Here for Curing.

Since yesterday, nearly 800,000 lbs. of fresh fish has arrived here from Boston, the market there being extremely dull, with no demand for fresh stock, consequently the fishermen have been obliged to take their trips to splitters.

Splitters were very much in demand yesterday. In fact there was not enough of them to go around at some of the places and the men worked late, getting out the trips and dressing them.

This morning, sch. Yakima, Capt. Robert Wharton, is here from the Gulf of St. Lawrence with 15,000 weight fresh halibut and a nice salt and fresh cod fare, besides some flitches. The Yakima made a couple of sets on Western Bank also, her fish being some of the finest landed during the past few weeks.

Other arrivals are schs. Agnes from halibuting with a small fare and sch. Marsala, Georges handlining, with 18,000 pounds salt cod and 4000 pounds fresh halibut.

THREE BIG CAPE SHORE FARES IN

Victor, Lottie G. Merchant and Monarch at Boston—More Porgy Boats at New- port—Rob Roy Dumps Part of Tinker Catch.

With the largest Cape Shore mackerel trip of the season, sch. Lottie G. Merchant, Capt. Ralph Webber, pulled in at the new fish pier, Boston, late yesterday afternoon, hailing for 30,000 large and medium fresh mackerel and 270 barrels of salt ones. The fish were taken to the westward of Canso, N. S., schs. Monarch, Victor and Benjamin A. Smith also getting nice hauls.

The Monarch, Capt. John S. Seavey, and Victor, Capt. John F. Vautier, arrived early yesterday afternoon at Boston. The former hailed for 30,000 large and medium fresh and 150 barrels salt mackerel and the latter 34,000 large and medium fresh and 200 barrels salt mackerel.

The crafts left Canso Monday with several others of the fleet and headed to the westward. Most of them turned back, but the Monarch, Victor, Lottie G. Merchant, kept on and were rewarded shortly afterwards by running into large rafts of fish. The four crafts secured nice trips, three of them heading directly for Boston after icing and dressing.

Busy Scenes at Newport.

There are busy scenes at Newport and New Bedford these days, where the porgy steamers still continue to land hundreds of barrels of tinkers. Tinker mackerel are a glut on the fresh market just about now, and yesterday sold as low as three-fourths of a cent a pound, and the fishermen were glad to get rid of them at that.

Dumped Tinkers Overboard.

Sch. Rob Roy disposed of all her tinkers at Boston yesterday with the exception of between 10,000 and 15,000. These softened and spoiled and were not fit even to split. On the way down here last evening they were dumped overboard, while a few which were saved were given away for the asking.

Splitters From Here at Newport.

Large gangs of splitters sent from here are working night and day at Newport, taking advantage of the spurt. Salt tinkers are wanted for the trade and there is always a lively demand for this size fish. The Gorton-Pew Fisheries Company and the Gloucester Mackerel Company have large gangs at work, including a number of lumpers at Newport, who are being given jobs. The men from here

But even at the liberal offers to splitters, it is hard to find men who can stand the work and will stick. Red feed, or "cayenne" as the fishermen call it, taken from the inside of the mackerel is interfering with the splitters, who complain of sore hands. Some of the novices in the work have fared worse than the old timers and have been obliged to lay off with bandaged fingers and hands.

The porgy fishermen have the advantage in regard to speed and handling. They use two boats in pursuing up the seines and the fish are simply shovelled on the steamer's deck and shovelled out again, upon docking.

Newport Arrivals.

This morning's receipts of tinkers at Newport were as follows:

Str. George Curtiz, 125 barrels.

Str. Ranger, 50 barrels.

Str. E. J. Dodd, 150 barrels.

Str. Mason, 40 barrels.

Str. Montauk, 60 barrels.

Str. Robert and Edwin, 125 barrels.

Str. Annie Wilcox, 50 barrels.

Salt Mackerel Sales.

The salt mackerel fare of sch. Saladin sold to the Cunningham & Thompson Company, that of sch. Harvard to William H. Jordan & Company, while the trip of sch. Corsair went to the Gorton-Pew Fisheries Company at the market price, $10 a barrel.

The salt tinker mackerel fare of sch. Roy Rob sold to the Gorton-Pew Fisheries Company at $9 a barrel.

Stocked $3100.

Sch. Saladin, Capt. John Matheson, stocked $3100 and the crew of 21 men shared $54.92 clear as a result of the recent Cape Shore seining trip. The Saladin is an auxiliary schooner.

Reported at Canso.

Sch. Juniata, Capt. William Foley, arrived at Canso, June 16, with 50 barrels of salt mackerel and sch. Veda McKown, Capt. Lewis Carritt arrived the same day with 100 barrels of salt mackerel.

Landed Cape Shore Fare at Portland.

Steamer Mary F. Ruth arrived at Portland, Monday, from the Cape Shore, with a bumper catch of mackerel, she weighing out 22,650 pounds, the fish running from large to medium in size. The entire catch, which was in prime condition, having been caught last Saturday, was sold to Del Sargent, Commercial wharf.

June 19

Another Fine Fare at Halifax.

With another large fare of 11 mackerel caught in 24 hours, the schooner D. C. Mulhall arrived at Halifax late on Monday night.

This is the second large catch of Mulhall, the last haul being landed at Halifax on Sunday afternoon, there being 28,000 fish. The vessel, on charging her fare, cleared again the evening and arrived with 18 24 hours later.

As with his last fare Captain Mulhall shipped the catch to the Boston market. The mackerel were not about 20 miles off Halifax harbor.

Apart from the Mulhall's fare, a little fish arrived at Halifax. A. T. son & Son received some 1500 pounds of salmon by rail and S. Y. Wilson that firm, stated that their branch Canso had received some 125 barrels caught in the vicinity of that place, said that most of these would probably be salted for the export market that the Boston market for fresh mackerel was dull at present, it being flooded by tinkers.

In speaking of the Mulhall's fare Mr. Wilson stated that he had advised Captain Cullen to salt his fish as he did not think he would realize what he expected in the present market at Boston, but he said had Captain Cullen stopped to salt his fish, he would probably have missed the large fare.

Mr. Wilson said that the catch at the coast had been fair Tuesday, on account of the bad weather, but of the fishing fleet had put in their hauls. He remarked that the east wind favored the mackerel and that probably the nettings would be better as a result. He also said that there was no line fishing at the coast.

The price of mackerel still remains the same in the local market and supply is easily kept up, as 100 barrels a day is sufficient to meet all requirements.

CREW SAVED AS CRAFT SINKS

The loss of the French fishing vessel Pere Jacques of St. Servan known Wednesday when the brigantine Jeanno came into St. Miquelon with the 26 men of the Jacques' crew. The vessel was a leak on the Grand Banks of Newfoundland, and sank Friday. The Jacques was a wooden bark built at Nantes in 1877, and registered 160 tons net.

POTOMAC IS LITTLE HU

Regardless of the fact that the Potomac, the best tug owned by the navy, was ice-bound for two weeks during the winter in the Gulf of St. Lawrence, navy officials found her in remarkably good shape when she was dry docked yesterday at Portsmouth. Her keel and propeller were what damaged and a few rivets were drawn. Her machinery and hull were perfect, and the boat floated again in 20 days.

Salt Cod.

With 150,000 pounds salt cod stored away in her hold, sch. A. Piatt Andrew, Capt. Wallace Bruce, arrived from a Cape North trip yesterday afternoon.

Capt. Bruce, like others of the Cape North fleet, found it a poor season, but it must be pretty poor indeed when the hustling skipper can't get a trip as he has demonstrated by his nice fare. The Andrew is one of the fortunate crafts that has done anything there this spring. Another nice trip is that of sch. Lucinda I. Lowell, Capt. Oscar Lyons, who only a few days out landed the largest fresh drift of the season yesterday afternoon, her haul being for 70,000 pounds fresh cod.

Sch. Margaret from halibuting has 10,000 pounds fresh halibut, and some fresh and salt shack, while sch. Jorgina, arriving this morning from Quero with a fresh fare and small amount of halibut and sch. Ralph Russell from salt drifting.
